

Everywhere outside, I wanted to, I could play the app

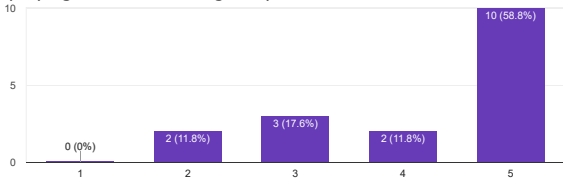

I often wanted to play, but there were no matching cars to capture

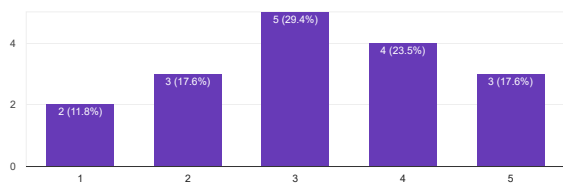

It was easy to integrate the app into my everyday life

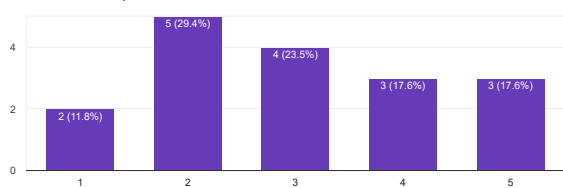

I hardly use my mobile phone, hence I didn't think of playing Racecar GO regularly

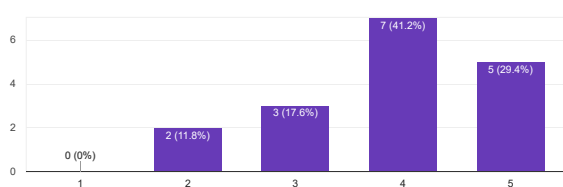

The game motivated me to walk farther than I planned

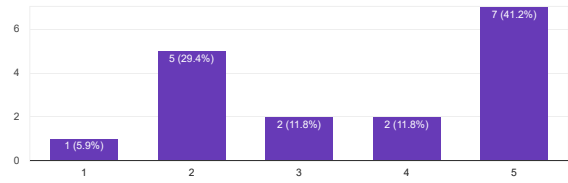

I consider myself athletic

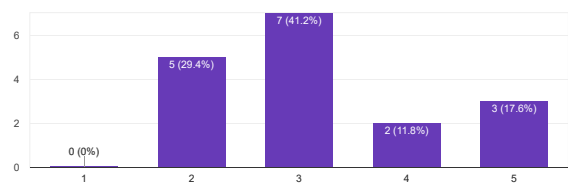

Because of the app I move more than before

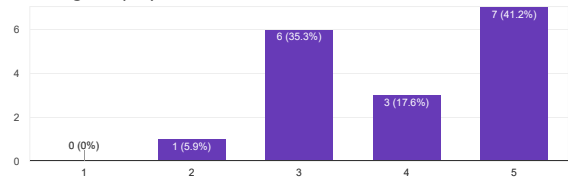

The capturing process helped me to form a relation to the car

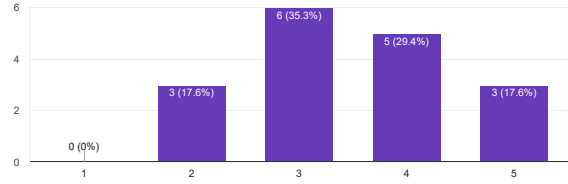

The virtual car overlay worked well

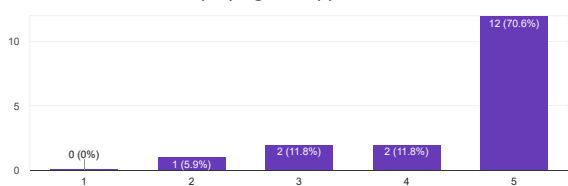

The virtual car overlay was cool but distracted from the actual gameplay

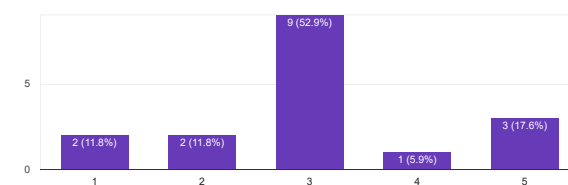

The game entertained me so much, that I did not only play to do Johannes a favor

I felt insecure while playing the app

I'm embarrassed when bystanders watch me playing an app

I'm embarrassed photographing other people's cars
